University of Biskra

Contribution to Sustainable Development

Pursuant to Law No. 98-11 of 22 August 1998 on the orientation and program law with a five-year projection for scientific research and technological development, Law No. 99-05 of 4 April 1999 on the framework law governing higher education, Executive Decree No. 219-98 of 8 July 1998 establishing the University of Biskra, Executive Decree No. 90-09 of 17 February 2009, and Executive Decree No. 129-14 of 5 April 2014:

- The University of Biskra is an Algerian public administrative institution with legal personality and financial autonomy.
- It contributes to the development of scientific and technological research, as well as to the acquisition, development and dissemination of knowledge and know-how. It also contributes to raising the scientific, cultural and professional level of citizens through the dissemination of culture and of scientific and technical information.
- The University of Biskra has the mission of participating in the economic, social and cultural development of the Algerian nation through the training of highly qualified professionals and executives in all fields. It also contributes to social promotion by ensuring equal access to the highest forms of science and technology for all those who demonstrate the necessary aptitude.
- Our university participates in and contributes to the development of policies for sustainable development by identifying the problems and challenges it faces, and by taking part in intersectoral dialogue on the Sustainable Development Goals, for example through the organisation and participation in conferences, study days and workshops.
- The University of Biskra also participates in national and international research and mobility projects that involve comparative studies and research aimed at developing international best practices in order to address the Sustainable Development Goals.

- Furthermore, these sustainable development objectives are pursued, in collaboration with the university, by students and social partners, in particular scientific, cultural and sports clubs, through the planning and implementation of volunteering activities, research and development projects, and the production of educational resources. These actions are documented in reports that present the efforts made, the results obtained and the progress achieved with regard to the various Sustainable Development Goals, such as the eradication of poverty, quality education, and the conservation and restoration of terrestrial and other ecosystems.

The University of Biskra offers substantial training on the Sustainable Development Goals to the academic community through information days. All registered students, graduating students, teaching staff, administrative staff, socio-economic partners, the private sector and local authorities are invited to attend on an optional basis.
